DEATH OF SIX BEING PROBED

Father is Questioned By Police Concerning Escape From Car.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 5.—Although Patrick Reichley, 31, whose wife and five children were drowned late Thursday night when their sedan plunged into 20 feet of water in the Scioto river near here, stoutly maintained that the tragedy was an accident, authorities today continued to pry mercilessly into the domestic affairs of the family.

Authorities were particularly interested in knowing how Reichley managed to save himself from the fate of his wife and five children as the car sank in the river. He was taken to the scene of the tragedy yesterday where his story was checked.

Meantime, funeral arrangements were being completed today for the victims, Mrs. Sarah Jane Reichley, 29, his wife, and his children, Conrad, 9; Juanita, 6; Robert and Raymond, four-year-old twins, and Charles, 2.

Zaenglein Calls Hi School Band

The first assembly of Circleville high school's 60-piece band will be held at 7 p. m. Monday, according to an announcement today by C. F. Zaenglein, director. At this time there will be a general get-together meeting among members and Mr. Zaenglein will outline plans for the coming year.

Practice will be held every night next week for various sections of the band. Mr. Zaenglein will announce Monday evening the schedule of practice for the various sections, such as clarinet, trombone, bass and others. This is being done so that when school opens the band will be organized and ready for business.

The band was made possible through the support of Circleville's Pumpkin Show Society, which presented $500 for the purchase of uniforms for the members. The newly organized group of music makers and marchers was received with many plaudits by the residents of Circleville at its first appearance last May. Appearing in classy red and black uniforms under the capable leadership of Mr. Zaenglein, the group of 60 boys and girls thrilled their parents and on-lookers as they marched through the streets.

The band will play an important part in Circleville's 28th annual Pumpkin Show which will be held Oct. 7, 8, 9 and 10. Band concerts at the court house every night during the show are being arranged for the group, together with their participation in the parades.

Mr. Zaenglein requests that every present and prospective member of the band be present at the high school auditorium Monday, at 7 p. m., so that all arrangements and plans can be made and that the organization will be ready to go when school starts.

THIEVES BUSY AT ASHVILLE

Deputy Sheriff Charges Professional Robbers Worked In Village.

Professional robbers are held responsible for thefts in and around Ashville early Saturday, according to reports sent to the office of Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

The thieves broke into two Ashville stores and the Teegardin elevator at Duval. Their loot at all three places consisted chiefly of cigars, candy and cigarettes.

By "jimmying" a window in the rear of the place, the culprits gained entrance into the Wilkens restaurant at Ashville and stole four boxes of cigars, about two thousand cigarettes, two dozen men's hose and an amount of candy.

A front door was broken by the thieves at the Kroger Store in Ashville to gain entrance. A number of cigars and cigarettes were the chief loot also obtained here.

A window was "jimmied" at the Teegardin elevator at Duval but nothing was reported missing by the management. The thieves left the office in a "topsy-turvy" condition.

Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell was busy Saturday, at the scene of the thefts taking finger prints and making further investigation. Fissell expressed the belief that the robbers wore gloves and worked as "professionals."

RELIGION AND WORK

Work is a divine law of life. Creative labor is an attribute est embodiment of God in human life that we know was revealed of God himself who created the heavens and the earth. The highed in the form of a humble carpenter, who said: "My father worketh even until now and I work." "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest."

Christ, the great Laborer, extends his arms of invitation to all the labors of the world. Labor Day is a good day to proclaim this fact with a new emphasis. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

world over, men are asking for employment. The right to work, to make a living, that is a vital problem. How to meet it should be the earnest study of all thoughtful men. No single organization or group can answer the question. The contribution of the church to the answer is not economic. That belongs to another group. But the church can say, does say, the motive must be Christian. In all our dealings one with the other the spirit of the Master-workman, Lord and Master of us all, is the important thing. Without it any approach, any solution will be a failure. The Church says to all men—Let the mind of Christ control you.

Creamed Comments On S. S. Lesson

Paul and Barnabas were probably led by their success in Cyprus to extend their missionary journey to Asia Minor, they pushed out of a narrow country around Pamphylia, the more healthful plateau where was located Antioch of Pisidia, now missionary territory.

V. 42. "And as they went out, they besought that these words might be spoken to them the next Sabbath." Paul by invitation had preached a sermon in the synagogue at Antioch which so greatly impressed the majority of the congregation that immediately a request was made for Paul to preach again the next Sabbath.

V. 43. "Now when the synagogue broke up, many of the Jews and of the devout proselytes followed Paul and Barnabas; who speaking to them, urged them to continue in the grace of God." These inquirers were untaught Christians and yearned to know more of the Way. Paul was a personal worker as well as a great preacher using the method of personal interview.

V. 44. "And the next Sabbath almost the whole city was gathered together to hear the word of God." Here is the secret of getting out a crowd to the Sabbath service; Paul presented Christ as their personal Saviour in such an effective manner as to cause a heart hunger that became a driving force.

V. 45. "And when the Jews saw the multitudes, they were filled with jealousy and contradicted the things which were spoken by Paul and blasphemed." It was a few of the Jewish leaders that opposed Paul for there were many Jews among the honest inquirers. It is hard for leaders to be set aside by new leaders who become suddenly popular. On the other hand there is a danger of inviting fanaticism if leaders are too willing to change the old for the new. Reason combined with sincere faith go hand in hand.

V. 46. "Seeing ye thrust it from you, and judge yourselves unworthy of eternal life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles." If we do not improve our privileges they will be taken from us and be given to those that will appreciate and use them.

V. 47. "For so hath the Lord commanded us, saying, I have set thee for a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldst be for salvation unto the uttermost parts of the earth." Paul based his decision for breadth in Christianity on the word of God, Isaiah 49:6. A true Christian has in him an urge to extend Christianity to others.

V. 48. "And as the Gentiles heard this, they were glad and glorified the word of God, and as many as were ordained to eternal life believed. Hearing is a serious business and an how we hear may depend vital issues of life and even life itself. There is a divine ordering of human affairs in such a way as not to exclude human choice.

V. 49. "And the word of the Lord was spread abroad throughout all the region." Something is to be said in favor of a good organization which makes possible well directed influences.

V. 50. "But the Jews urged on the devout women of honorable estate; and the chief men of the city and stirred up a persecution against Paul and Barnabas and cast them out of their borders." Get men to think that religion is interfering with business and they will try to frighten the preachers and stop any such work.

V. 51. "But they shook off the dust of their feet against them and came unto Iconium." Shaking off the dust of the feet meant disapprobation and rejection. Iconium is a large city, 60 miles southeast of Antioch.

V. 52. "And the disciples were filled with joy and the Holy Ghost." The proper fruits of the gospel are joy and the indwelling of the Holy Ghost.

V. 53. "For I am not ashamed of the gospel; for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth: to the Jews first and also to the Greek." In Paul's day opposition to Christianity was so fierce that it meant unusual courage to be only a Christian witness; but Paul was so bold that nothing could intimidate him.

LINE OF STUDY A TEACHER OUGHT TO PURSUE IN THE LIFE OF THE INDIVIDUAL MEMBERS OF THE CLASS?

For a teacher to do most effective teaching, he ought to know in each individual his heridity and environment, his general characteristics, his individual differences, his vital interests and needs, his problems and difficulties and the avenues of approach to his inner life.

WHAT ARE SOME OF THE POINTS FOR A TEACHER TO STUDY REGARDING THE HEREDITY OF THE MEMBERS OF HIS CLASS?

Essential facts regarding heridity may be found in the answers to such questions as what appear to be noticeable family peculiarities. What about health, temperament, special abilities, mental level, interests, achievements? To what extent does the one being studied resemble father, mother, grandparents, other members of the family? What does this indicate in the personal peculiarities of a given member?

RELIGION AND WORK

Work is a divine law of life. Creative labor is an attribute est embodiment of God in human life that we know was revealed of God himself who created the heavens and the earth. The high-ed in the form of a humble carpenter, who said: "My father work-eth even until now and I work." "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest."

Christ, the great Laborer, extends his arms of invitation to all the labors of the world. Labor Day is a good day to proclaim this fact with a new emphasis. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

world over, men are asking for employment. The right to work, to make a living, that is a vital problem. How to meet it should be the earnest study of all thoughtful men. No single organization or group can answer the question. The contribution of the church to the answer is not economic. That belongs to another group. But the church can say, does say, the motive must be Christian. In all our dealings one with the other the spirit of the Master-workman, Lord and Master of us all, is the important thing. Without it any approach, any solution will be a failure. The Church says to all men—Let the mind of Christ control you.

The search for an abundant life is the universal quest of the soul. The abundant life consists in living, not having. It is found not in the abundance of possessions, but it is found in the abundance of our expression of service, of love, and of Christian human relationships.

Jesus is the only source of abundant life, because He is the only perfect example of it.
His abundant life was not expressed in length of years or in possession of property, but in fellowship with God and in service to man.

We can have the abundant life. The church trains us to receive it. Sunday school and worship at 9:30 a. m. Charles Essick, superintendent.

V. 42. "And as they went out, they besought that these words might be spoken to them the next Sabbath." Paul by invitation had preached a sermon in the synagogue at Antioch which so greatly impressed the majority of the congregation that immediately a request was made for Paul to preach again the next Sabbath.

V. 43. "Now when the synagogue broke up, many of the Jews and of the devout proselytes followed Paul and Barnabas; who speaking to them, urged them to continue in the grace of God." These inquirers were untaught Christians and yearned to know more of the Way. Paul was a personal worker as well as a great preacher using the method of personal interview.

V. 44. "And the next Sabbath almost the whole city was gathered together to hear the word of God." Here is the secret of getting out a crowd to the Sabbath service; Paul presented Christ as their personal Saviour in such an effective manner as to cause a heart hunger that became a driving force.

V. 45. "And when the Jews saw the multitudes, they were filled with jealousy and contradicted the things which were spoken by Paul and blasphemed." It was a few of the Jewish leaders that opposed Paul for there were many Jews among the honest inquirers. It is hard for leaders to be set aside by new leaders who become suddenly popular. On the other hand there is a danger of inviting fanaticism if leaders are too willing to change the old for the new. Reason combined with sincere faith go hand in hand.

V. 46. "Seeing ye thrust it from you, and judge yourselves unworthy of eternal life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles." If we do not improve our privileges they will be taken from us and be given to those that will appreciate and use them.

V. 47. "For so hath the Lord commanded us, saying, I have set thee for a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldst be for salvation unto the uttermost parts of the earth." Paul based his decision for breadth in Christianity on the word of God, Isaiah 49:6. A true Christian has in him an urge to extend Christianity to others.

V. 48. "And as the Gentiles heard this, they were glad and glorified the word of God; and as many as were ordained to eternal life believed. Hearing is a serious business and an how we hear may depend vital issues of life and even life itself. There is a divine ordering of human affairs in such a way as not to exclude human choice.

V. 49. "And the word of the Lord was spread abroad throughout all the region." Something is to be said in favor of a good organization which makes possible well directed influences.

V. 50. "But the Jews urged on the devout women of honorable estate; and the chief men of the city and stirred up a persecution against Paul and Barnabas and cast them out of their borders." Get men to think that religion is interfering with business and they will try to frighten the preachers and stop any such work.

V. 51. "But they shook off the dust of their feet against them and came unto Iconium." Shaking off the dust of the feet meant disapprobation and rejection. Iconium is a large city, 60 miles southeast of Antioch.

V. 52. "And the disciples were filled with joy and the Holy Ghost." The proper fruits of the gospel are joy and the indwelling of the Holy Ghost.

V. 16. "For I am not ashamed of the gospel; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every-one that believeth; to the Jews first and also to the Greek." In Paul's day opposition to Christianity was so fierce that it meant unusual courage to be only a Christian witness; but Paul was so bold that nothing could intimidate him.

Lines of Study a Teacher OUGHT TO PURSUE IN THE LIFE OF THE INDIVIDUAL MEMBERS OF THE CLASS?

For a teacher to do most effective teaching, he ought to know in each individual his hereditary and environment, his general characteristics, his individual differences, his vital interests and needs, his problems and difficulties and the avenues of approach to his inner life.

WHAT ARE SOME OF THE POINTS FOR A TEACHER TO STUDY REGARDING THE HEREDITY OF THE MEMBERS OF HIS CLASS?

Essential facts regarding heredity may be found in the answers to such questions as what appear to be noticeable family peculiarities. What about health, temperament, special abilities, mental level, interests, achievements? To what extent does the one being studied resemble father, mother, grandparents, other members of the family? What does this indicate in the personal peculiarities of a given member?

Any member of the family of Charlotte Caldwell, 533 S. Court-st., is invited to be a guest of The Herald to the Grand Theatre. Call at this office for ticket.

GROCERS ARE 1931 CITY RECREATION LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

Winning Marker Scored In Ninth, Victory Is 4 To 3

Hail the champions! And in two guesses any sports fan in the city will know that it is the Independent Grocers, winning their first city championship, by taking the fourth game of a five-contest series with the Circleville Oils. The Grocers after winning the first two contests fell by the wayside in the third game only to come back in the fourth to cop the gonfalon and the A. G. Spaulding & Co. trophy.

The score of the final game, and what a game it was, was 4-3, the winning run coming over in the last of the ninth inning before any runner was out.

WALLACE HITS

Ralph Wallace, Grocer manager and first baseman, who had gone hitless in the first three games, smashed a ball a mile a minute toward left field. The ball was too hot for Merriman to handle. Then Wefler cracked a single to left center field putting runners on first and second base and no one out. Watson stung a grounder to Merriman and with a force at third in front of him the Oil shortstop let the ball go through him to left field and Wallace scored standing up.

This contest was without a doubt the hardest fought of the entire series. In this game and in only this game was there any arguing and disputing over umpire's decisions. The Oils claim a decision at first base "robbed" them of the game. No matter how true this is, the contest was a real one.

PURCELL DOUBLES

Neither team scored in the first frame but in the second the Oils started things rolling when they scored two tallies. Smith was safe on Watson's error and wild throw and went to second base. Purcell ejected the Grocer defense by dropping a double along the left field line, Smith scoring. Robinson popped out after Purcell had gone to third and he scored when Stevens grounded out to Kline.

The Grocers got on back in the second. Howard White made a two-base miff of Timmy Kline's hoist. Mettler fled out to left field, Kline holding second from where he went to third on Radcliff's single and scored on Merriman's high throw to first base. Merriman threw Wefler out to end the inning with two runners on base.

Neither team could force a run over the plate until the sixth when each team scored again. Pickens went to second when Wefler pegged wild to first base, the ball going against the automobiles. Merriman fled out to left and Steele sent the speedy Pickens across the plate with a line single.

The Grocers got their run on Wallace's double to left center which Howard White tried to catch on his shoe-strings. Wallace went to third when Wefler grounded out, Stevens to Pickens and scored when Merriman muffed Watson's smash.

ARGUMENT ENSUED

The Grocers scored in the last of the seventh and the Oils threatened in the eighth. White singled to center and Pickens was safe on Wefler's error. Merriman fled to Barnes both runners holding their sacks but on Steele's fly to Radcliff both advanced, Howard White taking the sack with him at third base to be safe. Then came the play that almost ended the game in a riot. Smith cracked a ground ball toward center field. Watson came over, picked up the ball, dropped then picked it up and pegged it to first base in time to get the decision. White had crossed the plate but the run didn't count because Smith was out.

The Grocer half of the ninth has already been told.

Radcliff with three out of four led the Grocer hitters while Mettler and Wallace each connected twice, each for a double and single. Howard White hit two singles for his team. One of the regrettable factors of the game was the failure of Eve Merriman, Oil shortstop to come up to the standard of his performance of Thursday evening. He had several costly errors.

Umpires were Donohue at plate, Jay Henry at first base, Russ Miller at second base and George Dade at third base.

The only thing that now remains for the recreation ball league is the selection of an all-star team. Each manager is to name his team get in the hands of The Herald editor by Tuesday and comparison will be made, the player getting the most votes for his position to be selected.

High up in the race in the Buckeye, of course, will be the Methodists from Wesleyan. Even elusive knowledge has come to the aid of the Delaware crew, one or two of the old boys having caught up in scholastic deficiencies during the summer.

As strong as anybody, the Methodists appear ready to give Ohio, Miami, and Cincinnati a hard fight. At this date the Denison team looks certain to be unanimously weak, although surprises may come out of a gang of sophomores.

What the Student Princes of Heidelberg will do to kick up excitement in the Ohio conference is the unanswered question which is being tentatively solved by the sharp-witted experts abound training quarters all over northern Ohio.

Running ramap last year, they couldn't be stopped. Now that the stars who were built in to a smooth machine, partly due to the work and attention given them for three years by Former Coach Herman Sawyer, have departed, the outlook is perhaps more gloomy than it has been for several seasons. This, of course, will be denied by the loyalists at the pool room in Tiffin, however.

Wooster lost Ray Miller, Jack Haines, Captain Don Haines, Pfeister, Tannehill and Buehler by graduation. Crippled Don Walke is rounding into shape and may be able to play. About eight veterans will return to Wooster.

Kenyon will have fewer regulars than usual, which, according to some of the boys who never cared for regulars anyhow, means it will have more spirit, fight, and determination.

Good material is available at Otterbein, and a lot of the teams from the bigger places had better watch out, according to bold statements pouring out of the home of the Anti-Saloon League. Hiram is not expected to start any hullabaloo at this stage in the century although the "prospects" are reliably reported to be better than usual, which still does not carry much alarm with it.

Ohio university's trouble, as has been observed, lurks there. Unfortunately, so do the difficulties of the Ohio conference leaders.

Although sobbing the usual lament about its losses, the Miami team appears to be the exception to the rule and slightly better than last year.

If the same could be said for Cincinnati—and there are those even outside the alumni association who say such can be said—it would seem that sensations might be expected from southern Ohio.

Colleges Of State Must Rebuild; Squads Green

By CHUB BEALLY

COLUMBUS, Sept. 5—Whether he goes north or south or east or west in Ohio, the sports writer surveying college football teams this year will find one color more dominant than a Princess Eugene hat at the Thursday afternoon bridge club.

The color is green. The shade is deep.

Ohio university, standing out prominently in the Buckeye conference, will be as inexperienced as the rest once a handful of veterans will. The few vets are strong but in the second line reserve camp, where harassed coaches grope in times of distress, there is no reason for delight.

Skipping over to the Ohio conference, the original term used to describe the condition of the loop wants to be stressed. The word "green" becomes "very green."

Mount Union, Muskingum and Wooster will be inexperienced, and Haley, Hutson and Vokaty have gone from Heidelberg.

If that piece of wisdom uttered by John McGraw one day as he saw his staggering New York Giants stumble and fumble to defeat were not so true in football, a considerable more lavishness of praise in the describing of the various Ohio college teams could be used.

History records that Mr. McGraw declared, with feeling, that "A team is no stronger than its substitutes." He referred to baseball teams but his observation was found to be amazingly true in the gridiron world, as well.

Ohio university's trouble, as has been observed, lurks there. Unfortunately, so do the difficulties of the Ohio conference leaders.

Although sobbing the usual lament about its losses, the Miami team appears to be the exception to the rule and slightly better than last year.

If the same could be said for Cincinnati—and there are those even outside the alumni association who say such can be said—it would seem that sensations might be expected from southern Ohio.

High up in the race in the Buckeye, of course, will be the Methodists from Wesleyan. Even elusive knowledge has come to the aid of the Delaware crew, one or two of the old boys having caught up in scholastic deficiencies during the summer.

As strong as anybody, the Methodists appear ready to give Ohio, Miami, and Cincinnati a hard fight. At this date the Denison team looks certain to be unanimously weak, although surprises may come out of a gang of sophomores.

What the Student Princes of Heidelberg will do to kick up excitement in the Ohio conference is the unanswered question which is being tentatively solved by the sharp-witted experts abound training quarters all over northern Ohio.

Running ramap last year, they couldn't be stopped. Now that the stars who were built in to a smooth machine, partly due to the work and attention given them for three years by Former Coach Herman Sawyer, have departed, the outlook is perhaps more gloomy than it has been for several seasons. This, of course, will be denied by the loyalists at the pool room in Tiffin, however.

Wooster lost Ray Miller, Jack Haines, Captain Don Haines, Pfeister, Tannehill and Buehler by graduation. Crippled Don Walke is rounding into shape and may be able to play. About eight veterans will return to Wooster.

Kenyon will have fewer regulars than usual, which, according to some of the boys who never cared for regulars anyhow, means it will have more spirit, fight, and determination.

Good material is available at Otterbein, and a lot of the teams from the bigger places had better watch out, according to bold statements pouring out of the home of the Anti-Saloon League. Hiram is not expected to start any hullabaloo at this stage in the century although the "prospects" are reliably reported to be better than usual, which still does not carry much alarm with it.

Years of mediocrity at Capital are not expected to change this

CLARK NAMES M'CLAIN BEST SINCE THORPE

Giant Indian With Tony Holm, Glen Presnell, Pa Lumpkin is Backfield.

PORTSMOUTH.—"The greatest Indian since Thorpe." That's what Coach George "Posty" Clark thinks of Mayes McClain, one time Haskell and Iowa University fullback who is out to win championship honors for the Portsmouth Spartans this season in the national pro league.

Potsy is ready to give a big hand to almost any member of his squad of 25 but he displays a rare type of enthusiasm when McClain's name is mentioned. "The whole outfit looks good to me," he said after this afternoon's workout, "but say, this McClain is a wonder. Why I knew that boy when Dick Hanley had him at Haskell and Dick showed him plenty of tricks. He wasn't really well that year at Iowa when Bert Ingversen had him but no slouch at that when you consider the points he rolled up. Mayes is a pink shape now and if he isn't the greatest fullback of 1931 you can call me names."

McClain has the same high stepping locomotion and hipswaying tricks which so characterized Thorpe at his prime. These spell "curtain" for the unlucky ones who get the wrong grip on the knees and a bad shake-off spill for the optimists who try to make a hip tackle from the rear. Passing and kicking are his other threats, his punts often carrying 70 yards

In 1925 he scored 376 points for the Haskell Indians in a single season, a college world's record which is still hanging. In 1920, his first year with the Spartans, he accounted for 63 points which made him the season's high scorer in the national league.

Coach Clark has put his charges through snappy workout's daily since the squad's arrival last Sunday. Approximately 5,000 fans turned out for the first session as an official welcome. Scrimmages of a mid-season variety marked the practice hours the latter part of the week.

The pro league's opening game with Brooklyn here September 13 will not be a push-over for the Spartans by any means, according to Clark. "But show me a team that can stop our McClain, Holm, Presnell and Lumpkin," he declared, "and I'll show you the national pro league champions."

2 BILLION DOLLARS TIED UP IN SHORT TERM SECURITIES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—More than two billion dollars is tied up in short-term government securities available for almost instant diversion to commercial and industrial development once the tide of business changes, it was revealed today.

GROCCERS ARE 1931 CITY RECREATION LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

Winning Marker Scored In Ninth, Victory Is 4 To 3

Hail the champions! And in two guesses any sports fan in the city will know that it is the Independent Grocers, winning their first city championship, by taking the fourth game of a five-contest series with the Circleville Oils. The Grocers after winning the first two contests fell by the wayside in the third game only to come back in the fourth to cop the gonfalon and the A. G. Spaulding & Co. trophy.

The score of the final game, and what a game it was, was 4-3, the winning run coming over in the last of the ninth inning before any runner was out.

WALLACE HITS

Ralph Wallace, Grocer manager and first baseman, who had gone hitless in the first three games, smashed a ball a mile a minute toward left field. The ball was too hot for Merriman to handle. Then Wefler cracked a single to left-center field putting runners on first and second base and no one out. Watson stung a grounder to Merriman and with a force at third in front of him the Oil shortstop let the ball go through him to left field and Wallace scored standing up.

This contest was without a doubt the hardest fought of the entire series. In this game and in only this game was there any arguing and disputing over umpire's decisions. The Oils claim a decision at first base "robbed" them of the game. No matter how true this is, the contest was a real one.

Neither team scored in the first frame but in the second the Oils started things rolling when they scored two tallies. Smith was safe on Watson's error and wild throw and went to second base. Purcell crossed the Grocer defense by dropping a double along the left field line, Smith scoring. Robinson popped out after Purcell had gone to third and he scored when Stevens grounded out to Kline.

The Grocers got on back in the second. Howard White made a two-base muffed off of Timmy Kline's hopst. Mettler fluffed out to left field, Kline holding second from where he went to third on Radcliff's single and scored on Merriman's high throw to first base. Merriman threw Wefler out to end the inning with two runners on base.

Neither team could force a run over the plate until the sixth when each team scored again. Pickens went to second when Wefler pegged wild to first base, the ball going against the automobiles. Merriman fluffed out to left and Steele sent the speedy Pickens across the plate with a line single.

The Grocers got their run on Wallace's double to left center which Howard White tried to catch on his shoe-strings. Wallace went to third when Wefler grounded out, Stevens to Pickens and scored when Merriman muffed Watson's smash.

ARGUMENT ENSUED

The Grocers scored in the last of the seventh and the Oil threatened in the eighth. White singled to center and Pickens was safe on Wefler's error. Merriman fluffed to Barnes both runners holding their sacks but on Steel's fly to Radcliff both advanced, Howard White taking the sack with him at third base to be safe. Then came the play that almost ended the game in a riot. Smith cracked a ground ball toward center field. Watson came over, picked up the ball, dropped then picked it up and pegged it to first base in time to get the decision. White had crossed the plate but the run didn't count because Smith was out.

The Grocer half of the ninth has already been told.

Radcliff with three out of four led the Grocer hitters while Mettler and Wallace each connected twice, each for a double and single. Howard White hit two singles for his team. One of the regrettable factors of the game was the failure of Eve Merriman, Oil shortstop to come up to the standard of his performance of Thursday evening. He had several costly errors.

Umpires were Donohue at plate Jay Henry at first base, Russ Miller at second base and George Dade at third base.

The only thing that now remains for the recreation ball league is the selection of an all-star team. Each manager is to name his team get in the hands of The Herald editor by Tuesday and comparison will be made, the player getting the most votes for his position to be selected.

Lineup and summary of the finals.

2 BILLION DOLLARS TIED UP IN SHORT TERM SECURITIES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—More than two billion dollars is tied up in short-term government securities available for almost instant diversion to commercial and industrial development once the tide of business changes, it was revealed today.

The bulk of this gigantic sum has been placed in the banks of the country by big corporations and others with a temporary surplus of cash on their hands and has been reinvested by the banks in the highly liquid bills and certificates issued periodically by the treasury department.

Officials pointed to this situation as indicative of the belief of the owners of this capital that the turn in business may come at any time, thus requiring cash for development purposes.

Every issue of government short-term money has been oversubscribed many times, indicating the leaning of corporations and others to placing their funds where they may be readily available. There was said at the treasury to be a disinclination among this group of investors to tie up their money for any extended period.

The recent offering of $300,000,000 in one-year certificates was oversubscribed four times, while for recent bill issues where $50,000,000 was offered the subscriptions generally ran over $200,000,000 although the discount was equivalent to a rate of about a half of one percent.

Colleges Of State Must Rebuild; Squads Green

By CHUB BEALLY

COLUMBUS, Sept. 5.—Whether he goes north or south or east or west in Ohio, the sports writer surveying college football teams this year will find one color more dominant than a Princess Eugene hat at the Thursday afternoon bridge club.

The color is green. The shade is deep.

Ohio university, standing out prominently in the Buckeye conference, will be as inexperienced as the rest once a handful of veterans wilt. The few vets are strong but in the second line reserve camp, where harassed coaches grope in times of distress, there is no reason for delight.

Skipping over to the Ohio conference, the original term used to describe the condition of the loop wants to be stressed. The word "green" becomes "very green."

Mount Union, Muskingum and Wooster will be inexperienced, and Haley, Hutson and Vokaty have gone from Heidelberg.

If that piece of wisdom uttered by John McGraw one day as he saw his staggering New York Giants stumble and fumble to defeat were not so true in football, a considerable more lavishness of praise in the describing of the various Ohio college teams could be used.

History records that Mr. McGraw declared, with feeling, that "A team is no stronger that its substitutes." He referred to baseball teams but his observation was found to be amazingly true in the gridiron world, as well.

Ohio university's trouble, as has been observed, lurks there. Unfortunately, so do the difficulties of the Ohio conference leaders.

Although sobbing the usual lament about its losses, the Miami team appears to be the exception to the rule and slightly better than last year.

If the same could be said for Cincinnati—and there are those even outside the alumni association who say such can be said—it would seem that sensations might be expected from southern Ohio.

As strong as anybody, the Methodists appear ready to give Ohio, Miami, and Cincinnati a hard fight. At this date the Denison team looks certain to be unanimously weak, although surprises may come out of a gang of sophomores.

What the Student Princes of Heidelberg will do to kick up excitement in the Ohio conference is the unanswered question which is being tentatively solved by the sharp-witted experts around training quarters all over northern Ohio.

Running rampant last year, they couldn't be stopped. Now that the stars who were built in to a smooth machine, partly due to the work and attention given them for three years by Former Coach Herman Sayger, have departed, the outlook is perhaps more gloomy than it has been for several seasons. This, of course, will be denied by the loyalists up at the pool room in Tiffin, however.

Wooster lost Ray Miller, Jack Haines, Captain Don Haines, Preister, Tannehill and Buehler by graduation. Crippled Don Wolket is rounding into shape and may be able to play. About eight veterans will return to Wooster.

Kenyon will have fewer regulars than usual, which, according to some of the boys who never cared for regulars anyhow, means it will have more spirit, fight, and determination.

Autumn Is Here
LIGHT frost was felt here today, read dispatches that will soon be appearing with more and more regularity.
Light frost? Why that means autumn is just around the corner. In a few weeks the frost will be on the pumpkin and the hear on the vine. And we thought summer had scarcely commenced. How the seasons fly. Away last spring, summer had seemed, in prospect, such a long, pleasant period of fine weather and pleasures.
In the spring one looks forward to summer with much longing. There were to be picnics, automobile trips, swimming, fishing, excursions to the mountains and seashore; and two weeks' vacation. So much was planned, and so little done. Now, as fall draws to a close, one realizes there were more events than dates on that summer program.

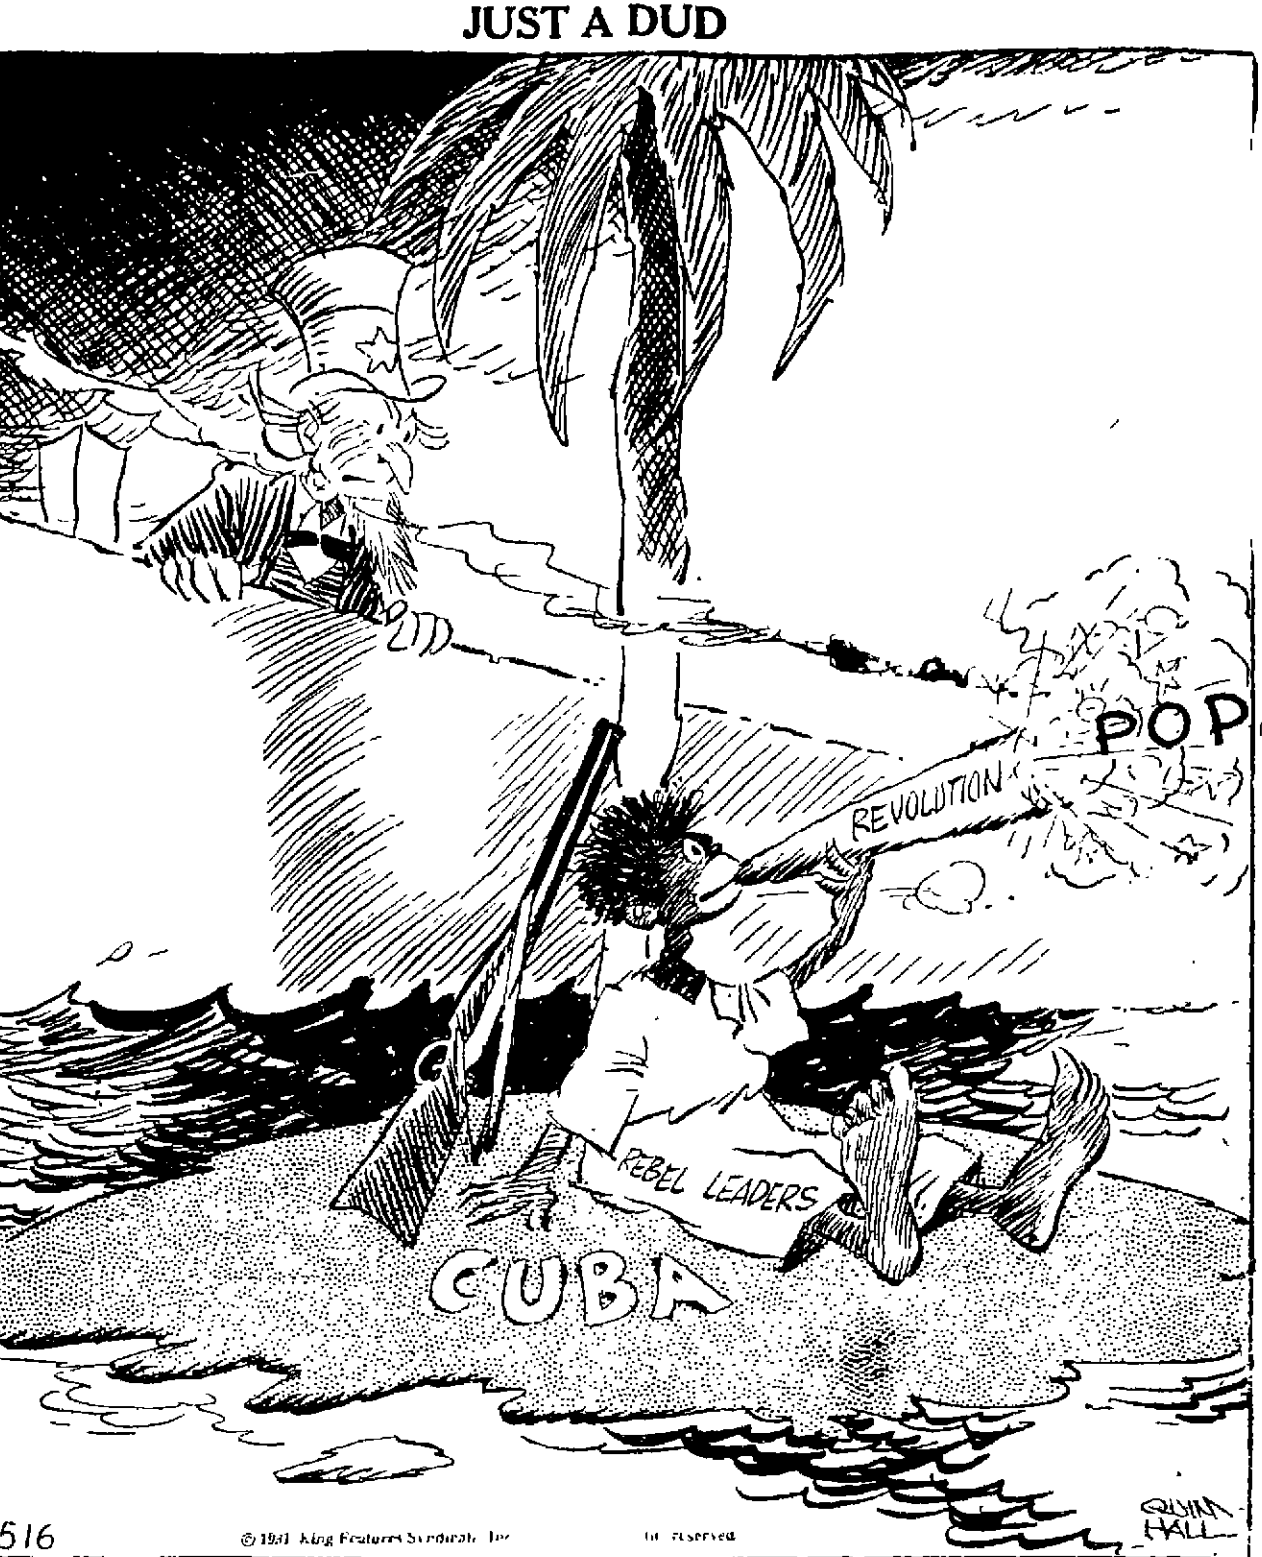

When autumn comes we count the dreams of spring that have not been realized during the summer. It is so all through life. Happy times and soul-stirring seasons are just ahead. But when we come to them they are crowded and short.
Through we reluctantly surrender the pleasures and pastimes of hot summer days, we turn to autumn with cherry anticipations of cozy evenings with radio and book, motoring in the rare autumn air, evenings at the theater, and harvest feasts.

The poet, who in the spring asked, "What is so rare as a day in June?" probably supplied his own answer when the fall came around. Nature makes her perfect days in September and October. Do not travelers invariably say they would exchange all the fine weather of the tropics for the days of autumn in the temperate zone? They are man's compensation for the dreary days of winter and the sultry days of summer.

Nomads of 1931
HE neighbors are back from their long auto tour, and they have a lot of experience, funny and provoking, to relate, and an unearthly number of snapshots to exhibit.
Looking well, too, one could not fail to notice. The kids are wilder than ever, though. Don't know what those neighbors are thinking of, to bring up youngsters wild. But on the whole the entire family certainly has been the gainer.
Notice Mr. Neighbor, now. His step is springy, his laugh booms deep, he shakes you hand as if he were trying to crank an unruly tin lizzie of ancient vintage.
And Mrs. Neighbor—asks alive! What will she do for clothes this winter? You remember how pudgy she was getting. Oh, of course we didn't tell her she was pudgy; we said plump. But meant pudgy.

And now she's thinner, and tall, and has the graceful carriage that her friends used to remark on so when she was younger.
Younger! That's the very word! The Neighbor family is all younger. A trip that took them six or eight weeks, happy, tanned, carefree, living the life of nomads.
H. G. Wells says that all mankind falls into two divisions—the merchants and the wanderers. When Herbert's successor writes the history of this century, maybe he'll tell how the two were merged. We are a nation of merchants and we are becoming a nation of vacationists. If the neighbors could have a fine trip like that this year, how's it to be hitch up the old gas buggy ourselves next spring, and start right out? "Would be fun."

Serious Side of College
IT is frequently said in deprecation of college men that they go to college to have a good time first and an education afterwards. Apparently some good people believe that it is purely accidental when a young man proves that he learned something in college besides social etiquette and athletics.
The facts in the case are that no man or woman ever left in institution of higher learning without some degree of mental improvement, that the serious side of college life is never seen by the public, while the lighter side is always getting an education is a struggle instead of a saturnalia of spending and sporting.
All colleges and universities report an increase number of students working their way through school and the number of college men and women who are not gainfully employed during the summer vacation period is not negligible. As far as working at their studies is concerned, there is no American institution of higher education which will tolerate low scholastic standards. The individual student must be 75 per cent efficient or leave by request.
A college education needs no defenses as it is now almost universally accepted as a necessity. It may be criticized regarding its efficiency, but until all young men and women become 100 per cent efficient as students colleges and universities can not attain that perfection of efficiency.

CHAPTER XVI.

AFTER Lorrimer had left the room she lay back against the pillows and tried to think her way out. There was no doubt that she was tempted. Terribly tempted. She admitted as much to herself. Why hadn't Mary Lou stayed and fought it out with her?
"Why had she run away? But," thought Delight, "in this case running away took more courage. All she had to do was stay and say nothing and let him look at both of us." She smiled very bitterly, having no illusions. "But now that she has run away," said Delight to herself, "she's left me a clear field. Well, comparatively clear; I'd be a fool not to take advantage of it. But then, I've always been a fool."

Inevitable Outcome

Before dinner Larry Mitchell arrived. He arrived in a condition which strongly resembled excitement, for Jenny, meeting him at the station that afternoon, had, of course, told him the whole story of her encounter with Mary Lou. "She said she'd keep in touch with us. But she won't. Where has she gone?" Jenny demanded frantically. "What will she do? Larry, we must find her; she's breaking her heart over Travers and this idiotic woman, whoever she is. And it's all your fault! To think that I have promised to marry such an unmitigated imbecile!" cried Jenny, very much upset.
"Check!" agreed Larry, as disturbed as she. "But how could I know that Mary Lou, darn her, would spill the complicated beans? I tell you, Jenny, I was blamed near keeping the whole business to myself, but I couldn't. You see the situation had to be cleared up sooner or later. Mary Lou couldn't go on pretending to the end of time. She couldn't keep stalling Lorrimer until all of us were gray and you and I had our playful grandchildren around our rheumatic knees."
"You take a lot for granted!" sniffed Jenny. But she smiled.
"Sure I do. That's the only way to get along in this life," quoth the unabashed Larry. "But don't worry, honey. I'll take a jaunt out to Oakdale. She'll go there, I'm sure. I'll take her and shake her."
"And bring her back to me," ordered Jenny. "She needn't go to Westwood House. She can see Aunt Margaret there. She needn't endure to think of her eating her heart out somewhere, thinking he hates her—Oh, she told me he'd hate her! Larry, can't you choke this Delight person or give her an ounce of arsenic? Because it's Mary Lou whom Travers really loves. And she loves him. This other woman doesn't count," said Jenny magnificently.
"Well, who said she did?" asked Larry.
Lorrimer got him by phone.

"I thought you'd be there. Can you come over?" he wanted to know. "Jenny, too, if she will—it's rather important."
While Larry was answering, Jenny dashed frantically around him, hissing, "Remember, you're not supposed to know anything about recent developments," at which Larry found himself smirking into the phone, his face wreathed in smiles and his voice tinged with jollity as if Lorrimer could see him.
So a little later they rode over to Westwood and, while Mrs. Lorrimer talked to Jenny in the library and explained to her very carefully the whole situation as it now stood, Jenny listening and interpolating the necessary exclamations and murmurs, Larry and Lorrimer went walking together, in the boxwood garden, where Lorrimer told him briefly what had happened.

Getting the Facts

Larry sat down astride a chair. "I didn't know what to do," he told her, frankly. "I knew at once who you were—I mean, when you told me, 'I'm a free lance writer,'" said Larry proudly, "that is, except for the well signed articles I do for the press, now and then. As for the publicity agent part of it, I didn't show up the first night, you see, and the management was hurt."
"You have certainly done a lot of damage around here," said Delight reflectively. "What did you mean by telling my right name? I assure you my right name is one of the few things I don't as a rule, tell anybody. When I entrusted it to you, how was I to know it would mean anything to you, or to anybody else?" she said.

Thanks, Not Anger

"I'll see Miss Harford," Larry promised. "Gosh, what a muddle! And, as you say, most of it my fault."
"I'm not blaming you. I'm thanking you," Lorrimer assured him. "For if it hadn't been for the advertisement—and you—and—Mary Lou, I'd be right where I was last autumn, which was in considerable outer darkness. You know, Mitchell, I don't have to tell you."
"You're not sore at Mary Lou?" asked Larry, directly, but a little more hesitantly than was usual to him.
"No."
Larry looked at Lorrimer's face, closed against him like a fist, not hostile but a little menacing in its complete lack of revelation, its hard reticence.
"Well," suggested Larry, with an assumed lightness, "suppose I go and see Miss Harford? Didn't you say she'd left the revue? Perhaps she wants me to square her with the powers that be."
Ten minutes later Larry was in Delight's room, standing at the foot of her bed, hands in his pockets, red hair ruffled and with a disarming smile upon his young, attractive countenance.
"Well, young man," commented Delight, "you seem to be able to take a time off!"

Pain After Operation Should Not Cause Fear

Abdominal Cases Particularly Make Many Patients Needlessly Unhappy Because of Twinges That Have no Bearing on Success of Surgeon's Work, Says Dr. Copeland.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

FEAR is a horrible master. A timid soul may tremble at the approach of some dread person. But fear of that sort is nothing like the agony suffered by the victim of disease, or what is just as bad, the suspicion of disease. My heart aches because of the worry, dread, apprehension, of many a frightened mortal.

It is not at all uncommon for one who has had an operation to be in constant fear of a recurrence of the ailment. Every pain in the seat, or in the region of the old wound, is magnified into importance. It excites the dread that the operation has failed to effect a permanent cure. The smell of the anesthetic and the horror of the operation are recalled, and they terrify the patient.

It is particularly true that after an abdominal operation such an experience as this may all but ruin what would otherwise be a happy life. The dragging and discomfort in the field of the operation are constant reminders of dreadful things that might happen.

There is always a reasonable explanation for such symptoms. The abdominal cavity, for instance, is lined with a delicate membrane—the peritoneum. They are really of no serious consequence, but may be productive of occasional periods of discomfort, particularly on getting out of bed or in stooping or walking. Such symptoms mean no more than a sore heel, or a tender finger-nail. But to the timid soul, with the memory of the past and the fear of what may happen, they mean a lot. Because of this feeling, the victim may be bedridden, and, of course, the longer regular exercise is neglected, the longer the symptoms will persist.

When the physician has made sure there is no gross trouble, the thing to do is to go about your affairs. Get interested in your work and forget the past. It won't be long before the discomfort will be entirely forgotten. No damage will be done by exercising—on the contrary, that is the way to get well and strong. To stay in bed means continued weakness, prolonged misery. Fresh air, out-of-door exercise and good food will end the trouble.

For such a reason and for many others it is not uncommon to have adhesions or other local areas of tenderness. They are really of no serious consequence, but may be productive of occasional periods of discomfort, particularly on getting out of bed or in stooping or walking. Such symptoms mean no more than a sore heel, or a tender finger-nail. But to the timid soul, with the memory of the past and the fear of what may happen, they mean a lot. Autumn Is Here

LIGHT frost was felt here today, read dispatches that will soon be appearing with more and more regularity.

Light frost? Why that means autumn is just around the corner. In a few weeks the frost will be on the pumpkin and the hoar upon the vine. And we thought summer had scarcely commenced. How the seasons fly. Away last spring, summer had seemed, in prospect, such a long, pleasant period of fine weather and pleasures.

In the spring one looks forward to summer with much longing. There were to be picnics, automobile trips, swimming, fishing, excursions to the mountains and seashore; and two weeks' vacation. So much was planned, and so little done. Now, as it draws to a close, one realizes there were more events than dates on that summer program.

When autumn comes we count the dreams of spring that have not been realized during the summer. It is so all through life. Happy times and soul-stirring seasons are just ahead. But when we come to them they are crowded and short.

Through we reluctantly surrender the pleasures and pastimes of hot summer days, we turn to autumn with cherry anticipations of cozy evenings with radio and book, motoring in the rare autumn air, evenings at the theater, and harvest feasts.

The poet, who in the spring asked, "What is so rare as a day in June?" probably supplied his own answer when the fall came around. Nature makes her perfect days in September and October. Do not travelers invariably say they would exchange all the fine weather of the tropics for the days of autumn in the temperate zone? They are man's compensation for the dreary days of winter and the sultry days of summer.

Nomads of 1931

HE neighbors are back from their long auto tour, and they have a lot of experience, funny and provoking, to relate, and an unearthy number of snapshots to exhibit.

Looking well, too, one could not fail to notice. The kids are wilder than ever, though. Don't know what those neighbors are thinking of, to bring up youngsters wild. But on the whole the entire family certainly has been the gainer.

Notice Mr. Neighbor, now. His step is springy, his laugh booms deep, he shakes you hand as if he were trying to crank an unruly tin lizzie of ancient vintage.

And Mrs. Neighbor—asks alive! What will she do for clothes this winter? You remember how pudgy she was getting. Oh, of course we didn't tell her she was pudgy; we said plump. But meant pudgy.

And now she's thinner, and tall, and has the graceful carriage that her friends used to remark on so when she was younger.

Younger! That's the very word! The Neighbor family is all younger. A trip that took them six or eight weeks, happy, tanned, carefree, living the life of nomads.

H. G. Wells says that all mankind falls into two divisions—the merchants and the wanderers. When Herbert's successor writes the history of this century, maybe he'll tell how the two were merged. We are a nation of merchants and we are becoming a nation of vacationists. If the neighbors could have a fine trip like that this year, how's it to be hitch up the old gas buggy ourselves next spring, and start right out? "Would be fun."

Serious Side of College

It is frequently said in depreciation of college men that they go to college to have a good time first and an education afterwards. Apparently some good people believe that it is purely accidental when a young man proves that he learned something in college besides social etiquette and athletics.

The facts in the case are that no man or woman ever left in institution of higher learning without some degree of mental improvement, that the serious side of college life is never seen by the public, while the lighter side is always on display and that very often getting an education is a struggle instead of a saturnalia of spending and sporting.

All colleges and universities report an increase number of stu-

CHAPTER LVI.

AFTER Lorrimer had left the room she lay back against the pillows and tried to think her way out. There was no doubt that she was tempted. Terribly tempted. She admitted as much to herself. Why hadn't Mary Lou stayed and fought it out with her?

Why had she run away? "But," thought Delight, "in this case running away took more courage. All she had to do was stay and say nothing and let him look at both of us." She smiled, very bitterly, having no illusions. "But now that she has run away," said Delight to herself, "she's left me a clear field. Well, comparatively clear; I'd be a fool not to take advantage of it. But then, I've always been a fool."

Inevitable Outcome

Before dinner Larry Mitchell arrived. He arrived in a condition which strongly resembled excitement, for Jenny, meeting him at the station that afternoon, had, of course, told him the whole story of her encounter with Mary Lou.

"She said she'd keep in touch with us. But she won't. Where has she gone?" Jenny demanded frantically. "What will she do? Larry, we must find her; she's breaking her heart over Travers and this idiotic woman, whoever she is. And it's all your fault! To think that I have promised to marry such an unmitigated imbecile!" cried Jenny, very much upset.

"Check!" agreed Larry, as disturbed as she. "But how could I know that Mary Lou, darn her, would spill the complicated beans? I tell you, Jenny, I was blamed near keeping the whole business to myself, but I couldn't. You see the situation had to be cleared up sooner or later. Mary Lou couldn't go on pretending to the end of time. She couldn't keep stalling Lorrimer until all of us were gray and you and I had our playful grandchildren around our rheumatic knees—"

"You take a lot for granted!" sniffed Jenny. But she smiled.

"Sure I do. That's the only way to get along in this life," quoth the unabashed Larry. "But don't worry, honey, I'll take a jaunt out to Oakdale. She'll go there, I'm sure. I'll take her and shake her—"

"And bring her back to me," ordered Jenny. "She needsn't go to Westwood House. She can see Aunt Margaret here. She needsn't lay eyes on Travers—but I can't endure to think of her eating her heart out somewhere, thinking he hates her—Oh, she told me he'd hate her! Larry, can't you choke this Delight person or give her an ounce of arsenic? Because it's Mary Lou whom Travers really loves. And she loves him. This other woman doesn't count," said Jenny magnificently.

"Well, who said she did?" asked Larry.

Lorrimer got him by phone.

deuts working their way through school and the number of college men and women who are not gainfully employed during the summer vacation period is not negligible. As far as working at their studies is concerned, there is no American institution of higher education which will tolerate low scholastic standings. The individual student must be 75 per cent efficient or leave by request.

A college education needs no defenses as it is now almost universally accepted as a necessity. It may be criticized regarding its efficiency, but until all young men and women become 100 per cent efficient as students colleges and

"I thought you'd be there. Can you come over?" he wanted to know. "Jenny, too, if she will—it's rather important."

While Larry was answering, Jenny danced frantically around him, hissing, "Remember, you're not supposed to know anything about recent developments"; at which Larry found himself smirking into the phone, his face wreathed in smiles and his voice tinged with jollity as if Lorrimer could see him.

So a little later they rode over to Westwood and, while Mrs. Lorrimer talked to Jenny in the library and explained to her, very carefully, the whole situation as it now stood, Jenny listening and interpolating the necessary exclamations and murmurs, Larry and Lorrimer went walking together in the boxwood garden, where Lorrimer told him briefly what had happened.

"No need to go into details. You know about everything. In a sense you're responsible," Lorrimer said, trying to smile, "for it was you who gave Mary Lou the advertisement which I can only designate as 'fatal'—"

"Gosh!" thought Larry, he's talking it like a soldier—"And," Lorrimer went on, "it was you who found Delight. She wants to talk to you. I don't know what about. I've asked Mother to tell Jenny the story—you don't want to keep any secrets from your wife, do you?" he asked. "And moreover she'd have to know soon."

Thanks, Not Anger

"I'll see Miss Harford," Larry promised. "Gosh, what a muddle! And, as you say, most of it my fault."

"I'm not blaming you. I'm thanking you," Lorrimer assured him, "for if it hadn't been for the advertisement—and you—and . . . Mary Lou, I'd be right where I was, last Autumn, which was in considerable outer darkness. You know, Mitchell, I don't have to tell you."

"You're not sore at Mary Lou?" asked Larry, directly, but a little more hesitantly than was usual to him.

"No."

Larry looked at Lorrimer's face, closed against him like a fist, not hostile but a little menacing in its complete lack of revelation, its hard reticence.

"Well," suggested Larry, with an assumed lightness, "suppose I go and see Miss Harford? Didn't you say she'd left the revue? Perhaps she wants me to square her with the powers that be."

Ten minutes later Larry was in Delight's room, standing at the foot of her bed, hands in his pockets, red hair ruffled and with a disarming smile upon his young, attractive countenance.

"Well, young man," commented Delight, "you seem to be able to take a . . . time off!"

universities can not attain that perfection of efficiency.

However, how many of those who condemn the college man for not working his way through school study while they are working for a livelihood? Studying is as much a man's job as shoveling.

BOOK REVIEW

Snappy sentences for church bulletin boards, by Holdcraft. The Methodist protestant book concern, Baltimore, Md., consists of 500 clever, pithy sentences relating to a wide variety of subject and suitable for use on church bulletin boards as sentence sermons to the passers-by.

"I'm a free lance writer," said Larry proudly, "that is, except for the swell signed articles I do for the press, now and then. As for the publicity agent part of it, I grieve to say that my job is over. I didn't show up the first night, you see, and the management was hurt."

"You have certainly done a lot of damage around here," said Delight reflectively. "What did you mean by telling my right name? I assure you my right name is one of the few things I don't as a rule, tell anybody. When I entrusted it to you, how was I to know it would mean anything to you, or to anybody else?" she said.

Getting the Facts

Larry sat down astride a chair. "I didn't know what to do," he told her, frankly. "I knew at once who you were—I mean, when you told me."

"Clever of you," she murmured. "Don't be comic. You know what I mean. I won't be polite with you now. I liked you all right, but how did I know what sort of a—"

"Spare me that," interrupted Delight, a little harshly.

"Oh, gosh, I always put my foot in it!" Larry groaned dismally, and regarded his number ten with animosity. "But I didn't and that's flat, and so, knowing the situation out here, I thought the best thing I could do was to tell you and tell Mary Lou and Mrs. Lorrimer and let them work it out for themselves. Well, Mary Lou did."

"I want to know something. You've certainly been frank. Well, I'm two such nice boys, only one doesn't meet them often socially," said Delight. "That kid—Mary Lou—you've known her longer than the rest of them here. She's in love with Larry, isn't she? Go on, tell me, forget you're a gentleman, I must know, for certain."

"Yes," answered Larry. He flushed scarlet. "It's letting her down to tell you," he said uncomfortably.

"No it's not," she denied, sharply. "Do you know that for a fact or is it just guesswork? Man's superior intuition and all that."

"She told me so," Larry said, simply.

"I see. And he's in love with her?" went on Delight.

"Larry shrugged.

"Of course. That is, he loved her, thinking she was you."

"I've heard that often enough. Don't go into details. It makes my head ache. What I want to know is this: You know Mary Lou very well. You know Larry, to some extent. Tell me, if I were out of the picture, do you think he'd continue to love her, knowing who she was?" demanded Delight.

"This," thought Larry, a little bewildered, but sure of one thing, "this is a darned fine woman, somehow."

There is nothing more instructive and nothing more helpful to buyer and seller than the continuous, truthful advertising of quality.

Advertising through the printed pages is rapidly increasing in popularity everywhere because it has been thoroughly tested and found to be the only sure way of increasing business. Everything possible should be done to encourage its further use.

It's a losing proposition for a man to speculate on what his wife intends to do.

Good intentions that fail to keep a man out of trouble usually do not go far in getting him out.

Pain After Operation Should Not Cause Fear

Abdominal Cases Particularly Make Many Patients Needlessly Unhappy Because of Twinges That Have no Bearing on Success of Surgeon's Work, Says Dr. Copeland.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

FEAR is a horrible master. A timid soul may tremble at the approach of some dread person. But fear of that sort is nothing like the agony suffered by the victim of disease, or what is just as bad, the suspicion of disease. My heart aches because of the worry, dread, a apprehension, of many a frightened mortal.

It is not at all uncommon for one who has had an operation to be in constant fear of a recurrence of the ailment. Every pain in the scar, or in the region of the old wound, is magnified into importance. It excites the dread that the operation has failed to effect a permanent cure. The smell of the anesthetic and the horror of the operation are recalled, and they terrify the poor soul.

It is particularly true that after an abdominal operation such an experience as this may all but ruin what would otherwise be a happy life. The dragging and discomfort in the field of the operation are constant reminders of dreadful things that might happen.

Dr. Copeland

There is always a reasonable explanation for such symptoms. The abdominal cavity, for instance, is lined with a delicate membrane—the peritoneum. After an operation it may be difficult or impossible to stitch it together to restore perfectly and smoothly the tender tissues. Perhaps it has been necessary to hurry the operation a bit because the anesthetic was not taken kindly. It was better to leave to Nature the complete closure of the wound.

Not Serious

For such a reason and for many others, it is not uncommon to have adhesions or other local areas of tenderness. They are really of no serious consequence, but may be productive of occasional periods of discomfort, particularly on getting out of bed or in stooping or walking. Such symptoms mean no more than a sore heel, or a tender finger-nail. But to the timid soul, with the memory of the past and the fear of what may happen, they mean a lot. Because of this feeling, the victim may be bedridden, and, of course, the longer regular exercise is neglected, the longer the symptoms will persist.

When the physician has made sure there is no serious trouble, the thing to do is to go about your affairs. Get interested in your work and forget the past. It won't be long before the discomfort will be entirely forgotten. No damage will be done by exercising—on the contrary, that is the way to get well and strong. To stay in bed means continued weakness and prolonged misery. Fresh air, out-of-door exercise and good food will do the trouble.

NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE

COLUMBUS. —The Ohio State Fair as usual attracted tens of thousands of visitors to the Capital City, a large per cent of whom visited the Capitol building and inspected the state offices. Boys and Girls clubs predominated and the youngsters enjoyed sight-seeing tours to several of the state institutions.

Governor George White and Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown have been meeting on the same speakers platform the past several days, but politics was tabooed in their addresses. Friday afternoon both officials assisted in the official opening of the super-highway connecting Canton and Akron, ten miles in length and forty feet wide. Saturday the two state officials were the guests of residents of Putnam-co at the 59th "Pioneer Day" celebration at Kalida. Civil Service Commissioner A. P. "Put" Sandles was also an honored guest, it being his native county. A pioneer celebration in Northwestern Ohio would hardly be a success without his presence and he has possibly spoken at more of these celebrations than any other citizen of the state.

Work on the new state office building in South Front-st. is being pushed rapidly but it is hardly

COMMERCIALIZE POWERS' 'MURDER GARAGE' IS OPPOSED

'Night-Riders' Burn Down Fence Used in Obtaining Money For Views of Place in Which Five Met Death; Sister of Slain Woman Faces Murderer in Jail.

By DAVID P. SENTNER
CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 5.—Reflecting the inflamed sentiment of the community over the atrocious crime of Harry Powers, self-confessed Bluebeard slayer of five persons, a band of "night-riders" early today burned down the fence surrounded the "murder garage" at Quiet Dell, where Powers had slain his victims.

The fence had been erected a few days ago by a man who had turned the murder site into "an amusement park."

The property was said to have been leased for this purpose from Mrs. "Lulu" Powers, wife of the mail-order slayer.

The vigilante committee wearing handkerchiefs for masks, ripped down the high board fence around the "slaughter-house" garage where the lessee had been charging admission to sightseers.

PASS INTO NIGHT
The boards were piled in a field nearby and were ignited. The flames rose to the skies and when the pyre was consumed to ashes, the "night riders" quietly took to their automobiles and disappeared into the night.

The raiding of the "amusement park" followed open criticism by the majority of the citizens in Clarksburg over the attempt to commercialize the scene of the murders.

The garage was built with a sub-cellar partitioned into four rooms. It was in its depths that Powers slaughtered Mrs. Dorothy Lemke, of Worcester, Mass., Mrs. Asta Echer, of Park Ridge, Ill., and her three children, according to his confession.

FACES SISTER
The high note in the Powers case from an emotional angle was recorded in the meeting between the love butcher and Mrs. Charles Fleming, of Northboro, Mass., sister of Mrs. Lemke, fifth victim of the slayer.

Mrs. Fleming, facing Powers in the county jail, positively identified Powers as the man, who under the name of Samuel Pierson, came to her home in Northboro, on July 28, stayed as an overnight guest, and went with Mrs. Lemke, presumably to get married.

Eye for Beauty

Seems like 'carrying coals to Newcastle' to send beauty to Kilmurry, famed for its lovely ladies, but that is exactly what Lord Castlehouse, Irish peer, is going to do. He has selected Miss Kay Mehan (above), of Philadelphia, as a typical Irish-American beauty to represent the United States in the Kilmurry Lakes Festival, to be held next year.

AMERICANS, BRITS GUARD PROPERTY

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 5.—A volunteer army of foreign residents, under command of an American citizen, patrolled the British and American settlements in Santiago today as new disaffection in the army aggravated the grave situation caused by mutiny of the fleet at Coquimbo and Talcahuana.

The Chilean government gave formal authorization to formation of a foreign "home guard" to protect the lives and property of British and American residents. The regular police force of Los Leones, where the majority of foreigners live, has been pressed into service to aid in preventing radical outbreaks in the central portion of the city.

thrill to set the new record, and to win the prize."

The major, who is director of aviation activities for Shell Oil company, then revealed the astounding facts that he had flown the final lap of more than 900 miles from New York back to St. Louis to keep a business engagement.

HAD APPOINTMENT
"I have made plans to fly several of the officials from St. Louis to the air meet at Cleveland, Saturday. Had the race from Los Angeles not been postponed there would have been plenty of time to fly in a leisurely fashion back to St. Louis to prepare for Saturday's trip. I returned to St. Louis tonight because I wanted to keep my original appointment."

Although piloting his green and yellow Laird special plane from Los Angeles to New York, and then back to Cleveland, the major flew from Cleveland to St. Louis as a passenger in a Lockheed Vega plane piloted by another flyer, Jimmy Hallip.

Of the prize money $7,500 came to the major as a result of winning the race from Los Angeles to Cleveland, while he received $2,500 more for setting a new record. The major in flying nearly 20 hours yesterday, flew approximately 3,320 miles. In making his record time, 11 hours and 15 minutes from coast to coast, the human bullet averaged better than 200 miles an hour.

The trip from Cleveland to St. Louis was made in 3 hours and 20 minutes, the ship taxiing into the local airport at 10:40 p. m., St. Louis time, 12:40 Eastern Standard time.

AMERICANS, BRITS GUARD PROPT

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 5.—A volunteer army of foreign residents, under command of an American citizen, patrolled the British and American settlements in Santiago today as new dissatisfaction in the army aggravated the grave situation caused by mutiny of the fleet at Coquimbo and Talcahuana.

The Chilean government gave formal authorization to formation of a foreign "home guard" to protect the lives and property of British and American residents. The regular police force of Los Leones, where the majority of foreigners live, has been pressed into service to aid in preventing radical outbreaks in the central portion of the city.

COMMERCIALIZE POWERS' 'MURDER GARAGE' IS OPPOSED

'Night-Riders' Burn Down Fence Used in Obtaining Money For Views of Place in Which Five Met Death; Sister of Slain Woman Faces Murderer in Jail.

By DAVID P. SENTNER
CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 5

Reflecting the inflamed sentiment of the community over the atrocious crime of Harry Powers, self-confessed Bluebeard slayer of five persons, a band of "night riders" early today burned down the fence surrounding the "murder garage" at Quiet Dell, where Powers had slain his victims.

The fence had been erected a few days ago by a man who had turned the murder site into "an amusement park."

The property was said to have been leased for this purpose from

Mrs. "Lulu" Powers, wife of the mail-order slayer.

The vigilante committee wearing handkerchiefs for masks, ripped down the high board fence around the "slaughter-house" garage where the lessee had been charging admission to sightseers.

PASS INTO NIGHT

The boards were piled in a field nearby and were ignited. The flames rose to the skies and when the pyre was consumed to ashes, the "night riders" quietly took to their automobiles and disappeared into the night.

The raiding of the "amusement park" followed open criticism by the majority of the citizens in Clarksburg over the attempt to commercialize the scene of the murders.

The garage was built with a sub-cellar partitioned into four rooms. It was in its depths that Powers slaughtered Mrs. Dorothy Lemke, of Worcester, Mass., Mrs. Asta Elcher, of Park Ridge, Ill., and her three children, according to his confession.

FACES SISTER

The high note in the Powers case from an emotional angle was recorded in the meeting between the love butcher and Mrs. Charles Fleming, of Northboro, Mass., sister of Mrs. Lemke, fifth victim of the slayer.

Mrs. Fleming, facing Powers in the county jail, positively identified Powers as the man, who under the name of Samuel Pierson, came to her home in Northboro, on July 28, stayed as an overnight guest, and went with Mrs. Lemke, presumably to get married.

thrill to set the new record, and to win the prizes."

The major, who is director of aviation activities for Shell Oil company, then revealed the astounding facts that he had flown the final lap of more than 900 miles from New York back to St. Louis to keep a business engagement.

HAD APPOINTMENT

"I have made plans to fly several of the officials from St. Louis to the air meet at Cleveland, Saturday. Had the race from Los Angeles not been postponed there would have been plenty of time to fly in a leisurely fashion back to St. Louis to prepare for Saturday's trip. I returned to St. Louis tonight because I wanted to keep my original appointment."

Although piloting his green and yellow Laird special plane from Los Angeles to New York, and then back to Cleveland, the major flew from Cleveland to St. Louis as a passenger in a Lockheed Vega plane piloted by another flyer, Jimmy Hallip.

Of the prize money $7,500 came to the major as a result of winning the race from Los Angeles to Cleveland, while he received $2,500 more for setting a new record. The major in flying nearly 20 hours yesterday, flew approximately 3,320 miles. In making his record time, 11 hours and 15 minutes from coast to coast, the human bullet averaged better than 200 miles an hour.

The trip from Cleveland to St. Louis was made in 3 hours and 20 minutes, the ship taxiing into the local airport at 10:40 p. m., St. Louis time, 12:40 Eastern Standard time.
